

Samuel

June 18, 2010

Even though you probably don't believe a fish can write what you are about to read, a fish wrote this. Anyways, it is summer, and as always, a lot of people come to the beach. What annoys me is that people always throw some sort of 'junk' or the so-called 'trash' away- not in the proper place. Every day I see more and more of it. And I really don't think it should be there. Today, I found a one of those 'plastic' rectangles with the holes in them caught on a bird, which means that one of those holes had somehow looped over the bird and caught its neck. It was struggling, so I tried to help him. Unfortunately, I couldn't help him get the plastic off of him. Even if I could, I couldn't really help every single animal that was in such a situation with trash, could I? I also saw a couple animals trying to eat this trash. I really think this problem should be solved. I am a member of OCeAn (Ocean Cleanliness Association) and I make sure that I am not affecting the situation in a bad way. I strongly believe that people in the future should not do such a thing, and I really, really, do want to say thanks for all the people that do help improve the situation. I have known many of these organizations that do so (most of the ones you are familiar with) and I give out my greatest thanks.